COLLEGE DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEES (CDC)

The College Development Committee (CDC) is the highest decision-making body of Poona Institute of Management Sciences & Entrepreneurship (PIMSE), tasked with planning and implementing development efforts that drive institutional progress. This CDC acts as a vital bridge between the institute, student community and administration and ensures collective efforts towards academic and infrastructural advancements.

At PIMSE, the CDC has been central to the deployment of innovative academic program and best practices and promoting excellence in teaching, learning and institution building.

Objectives

- To encourage innovative teaching practices, research activities and skill development learning towards academic excellence.
- To plan and develop an institutional infrastructure, technological upgradation and effective utilization of resources.
- To foster student-oriented programs, career development programs and faculty development for sustained development.
- To plan and implement industry partnerships, internship programmes, and community outreach programmes.
- To help provide context for institutional policies, compliance with regulations and strategic growth efforts.
